ENGINEERING APPRENTICE OF THE YEAR 2020

Winner

Rachel Green- Cadent Gas

Overview of entry

Rachel Green was nominated for Apprentice of the Year by Cadent Gas due to her being their stand out apprentice over the past many years. She had shown dedication to learning her role and gaining her qualification to get the best start possible in her career, but had also given her time to help others on her course to make sure they also could do well in the business. She showed dedication to helping promote not only the business itself via its many social media channels, but also to promote women and equality in engineering. She spent time attending recruitment fairs, interview days, creating videos and interviews for Cadent's social media; all with enthusiasm and pride. Rachel was extremely proud to win Engineering Apprentice of the Year and knows how much it means to win such a special award.
